Who Actually Graduates From Ridley Today?

BY DOUGLAS J. CAMPBELL
Headmaster

hat sort of person would you like to see graduate from Ridley?" That was the rather daunting question that a prospective parent asked me this past summer. (I can't remember my exact answer but it must not have discouraged the parent completely as the child enrolled!) The question has remained with me, however, and is worth a more thoughtful response.

The simplest answer is a great and strong variety of people who respect themselves and who are considerate of others: people who are self-confident; people who have had their potential for learning and leadership unlocked; and, certainly, people who have developed the survival skills of communication, reasoning and self-discipline.

But our world of the 21st Century will, no doubt, demand more. We need people who will persist in the belief that goodwill and intelligence applied by caring, informed people can do wonders in improving any situation whether in a person's life, in a community, or in the world. Schools, quite properly, concentrate on the brains of students, but we must not neglect their hearts. A brain which operates with clarity, openness, tolerance and gentleness will have infinitely more effect and influence.

We will need to have people who recognize opportunity when it arises. And, perhaps more importantly, we will need people who want to participate in life and make a difference rather than being spectators.

We will need people who know how to handle their blessings. Many of our students are privileged - materially, socially, intellectually and physically. Enormous responsibility comes with these gifts. Service to others, as expressed by the school motto, and a desire to not just tolerate those who are different, but to appreciate them, are vital talents to develop. We must help our students learn to eliminate the barriers of this world, whether they be economic, social, religious, racial or national.

We will also need people who leave Ridley with the sure and certain knowledge that they are "incomplete." If we have done our job well, our graduates will leave with a thirst and zest for life and learning. A characteristic of maturity is the realization that the more you learn, the more you become aware of what you don't know. Far from being a discouraging revelation, this should be viewed as a challenge and opportunity for more adventure.

Let's hope that the Ridley of today and tomorrow stimulates hearts and minds so that we can produce joyous, competent and compassionate adventurers. (RT)

Guidance: The University Admissions Game

BY SIMON J. HALL
Director of Guidance

As a part of society subject to the modern pressures of financial constraint, social trends, growing diversity, and greater accessibility, higher education is changing. We see the effects of financial restrictions in over-sized classes, limited enrollment, and aging facilities, among others. Socially, we see a significant growth in female participation to the extent that women now slightly outnumber men in many undergraduate programmes. At the same time, programme specialization has increased, with an enormous array of choices (Actuarial Science to Zoology) being presented to applicants. And new areas are added regularly, such as Business and East Asian studies, Ethics in Medicine, as well as new fields in Computers and Engineering. Furthermore, modern travel has made attending a distant university quite practical - and not uncommon for today's youth.

For the current Ridley graduate, the excitement of moving on to a new stage of education is tempered by the confusion of so many choices. Many young people are not prepared, often wisely, to make firm commitments to specialized university programmes. In fact, most are still in the process of discovering their own strengths and weaknesses, and establishing their own values and interests. To this point in their lives there has been a considerable amount of external pressure directing them along the educational path; now, for the first time in many cases, they are asked to make an important decision largely by themselves. Many seek more time, and are heartened to know that universities require a diversified first year, with the exception of professional programmes, before one is able to declare a major. Nevertheless, each student feels the pressure to make the right decision, a decision that will meet their own and their parent's expectations.

At the same time, on a technical level, admission criteria present a hazardous maze. Each university has admission requirements that can differ slightly or significantly even for the same programme or faculty. This problem is exacerbated when students apply to universities in other jurisdictions. In many circumstances the requirements conflict, so that the best strategy for admission within Ontario is counter-productive outside the province. For example, Ontario universities will only assess a student's top six OAC/Grade 13 courses (unless they have stipulated the inclusion of prerequisite courses); in contrast, McGill assesses all courses. A student who takes more than six courses and can eliminate the lowest marks for Ontario universities stands the best chance in Ontario, but at the same time may well jeopardize his chances at McGill, or Harvard for that matter. This problem increases in complexity as the number of applications and jurisdictions increases. On average, Ridley graduates today will apply to three universities in Ontario and three or more outside the province. Given that university calendars are notorious for their dense and often confusing presentation of information, it is no wonder that students can be intimidated and discouraged by the admissions process.

Parents can suffer their own kind of purgatory as they do their best not to interfere, and yet be ready and able to intervene if necessary. Parents often feel very out-of-touch when it comes to re-acquainting themselves with the complex and changing world of university admissions. As I sit amidst an annually updated collection of university guides and calendars representing thousands of institutions, I am struck by the variety and range of options available. This is the reality of the complexity even without adding on consideration of applications for various scholarships, or consideration of an alternative year between high school and university.

To address this state of affairs and assist graduates and their families, the Ridley Guidance Department is committed to providing a high quality and comprehensive support service. First, parents are kept informed through university presentations on Parents' Days for senior grades, term by term information letters sent home with reports, school publications, and a standing invitation for parents to visit the school and meet with me at any time to discuss plans and progress. Second, students are prepared through a sequence of information and planning classes and grade presentations, augmented by school publications, and individual interviews. Third, we provide an extensive array of resources, including a growing library of videos and computer programmes; university calendars and related materials for over two hundred and fifty universities and colleges, as well as specialty guides to thousands more; guides to scholarships; guide books to worthwhile ways to spend a year between high school and university; and a series of university representatives visiting the school. Also, Ridley is the Niagara testing centre for the College Board exams written by all applicants to the U.S. In addition, we ensure counsellors are kept up to date through professional development activities, and I would be remiss if I did not attest to the high calibre of our two hard-working secretaries whose professionalism and commitment is indispensable to assisting students. With this comprehensive set of services, students are able to overcome the paper jungle of applying to university without succumbing to the hardships.

Students go through a challenging series of steps and stages during the graduation year. The year begins with commitment to school involvement and countless future possibilities, and ends with a goodbye to the school and a single destination. For many, successfully matriculating to university represents the crowning achievement for the Ridley graduate. Indeed, it is a triumphant moment at the end of a challenging struggle to develop the skills and confidence to stand on one's own two feet. Parents somewhat regretfully but happily pass on to the graduate the privilege of freedom and adult responsibility. And Ridley bids best wishes and Godspeed to another generation of graduates. (RT)

Trivia

Who was Edward 'Teddy' Marriott? He was not endowed with many worldly goods, but he was rich in personal characteristics, kindly, genuine, humble and strong - one of nature's gentlemen.

Teddy was a long time friend of my father, probably from the days when my Dad coached the U of T football team. He had no immediate family, of which I am aware, and when he died he left what money he had to Ridley. My father used this legacy to erect the Marriott Gates in 1934. The gates were designed by Ferdie Marani '12. Little did anyone realize that these gates would be used to symbolize Ridley's 2nd Century Campaign.

David A. Dodge, O.R. '61
BA, PhD

'Professor' Dodge takes heat for GST

To most of us, the world of economics is a murky, complex, arcane discipline. U.S. presidents know this and have often made economists, especially those who advise them, the target for some of their wittiest and most caustic barbs. It may have been Harry S. Truman who started the joke about one-handed economists. "All my economists say, 'on the one hand ... on the other'. Give me a one-handed economist!" Well, Dr. David Dodge, Associate Deputy Minister of Finance, wins "hands down" not only as one of Ridley's most illustrious graduates, but one of Canada's most eminent economists, of the "one-handed" variety!

David Dodge spent one year in the Lower School (1956-57) and four years in the Upper (1957-61) distinguishing himself in a vast variety of ways: Prefect, English, History and Geography and Scripture prizes in Grade XI, 2nd Football, manager of 2nd Hockey, Boxing finalist, Editor in chief of Acta, Debater, Glee Club, Head Librarian, Province of Ontario Scholarship and the Kelly Matthews Proficiency Prize in Grade XIII. This high level of achievement followed him to Queen's University where he received his Honour BA in 1965 with the Medal in economics. He then went on to Princeton where he was awarded his PhD. In 1972, he joined the Department of Finance as senior research officer and subsequently became Director of policy analysis at the Ministry of State for Economic Development. In 1977 he was appointed professor in the School of Advanced International Studies at John Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland. He rejoined the Federal Government in 1980 as assistant Deputy Minister in strategic policy and planning. In October, 1989, he was promoted to associate Deputy Minister responsible for implementation of the GST and Canada's policies in international economic institutions.

Like all economists of any stature, Dr. Dodge has been on the "Hot Seat" more than once. The headline for an article in the December, 1989 issue of The Financial Post reports: 'Professor' Dodge takes heat for GST. His colleagues in Finance have dubbed him 'the Professor' partly because of his demeanor and partly because Dodge has been acquainted with the professorial role throughout his career. The object of attack is something he has grown very accustomed to.

Throughout the difficult process of tax reforms, started by Finance Minister Michael Wilson back in 1985 when the U.S. suddenly reformed its taxation system, Dodge has been one of the leading figures in the Department of Finance, handling the technical issues behind the changes. Don Blenkarn, Conservative MP and Chairman of the parliamentary Finance Committee and one of Dodge's major adversaries over the years of tax reform has given him the nickname "Tax".

Taxes and death are the only certainties is the way the old cliché runs. It may be a good thing that at least one of these certainties is in the hands of an eminent Ridleian. (RT)

Farewell To a Grand Old Elm

BY ALLAN J. KLING '70
President, Ridley College Association 1990-91

One of Ridley's most stately landmarks is gone. The glorious American elm, whose magnificent canopy shaded thousands of Ridleians as they passed through the chapel doors, was removed this past September - yet another victim of the destructive elm bark beetle.

Planted shortly after School House was completed in 1905, this 70 foot specimen was one of over 130 American elms that once graced the Ridley campus. Many will recall the leafy arcade of elms along the main drive (sic), and those in front of the Iggulden Gymnasium, which provided such a pleasant border between the Upper and Middle Schools.

It is something of a miracle that the chapel elm survived as long as it did. While it is not clear when the bark beetle first arrived in Canada, we do know that the destruction of Ridley's elms was well underway by the 1950's. (The cause of disease was not actually the beetle, but a fungus it carried.) By 1966, virtually all of our elms were dead and had to be removed, in many instances by crane.

When the cause of the malais became known, many Ridleians contributed both time and money to stave off the destruction. Experts were brought in, special treatments administered and the odd prayer offered in chapel. By this time most of the trees were beyond help, but the chapel elm was preserved for another 25 years. Now only five of these great hardwoods survive on the Ridley campus.

THE RIDLEY TREE PLANTING PROGRAMME

Ridley's campus has a unique landscape quality not often found in Canada. Three basic elements - wide uninterrupted sweeps of mown grass, groups and rows of tall forest trees and clusters of classical-style buildings - have been combined to create a restful and serene landscape. The delicate balance between these elements can be lost all too easily through indiscriminant development or the loss of trees to disease and natural degeneration.

In 1984, Ridley's Board of Governors authorized a long-term "Master Plan" for the campus that is intended to ensure a visually interesting and varied landscape that complements the many architecturally significant buildings found on the campus. Tree planting is a central element of the Master Plan. New plantings of both deciduous and coniferous trees are necessary to preserve the original wooded nature of the campus. With this objective in mind, Ridley's Landscape Committee has been authorized to initiate and manage a programme in which friends and graduates are invited to donate trees to the school.

The Tree Planting Programme is open to everyone. Donations will go towards the purchase, installation and maintenance of trees on the Ridley campus. All trees will carry a plaque that gives the common and botanical names of the tree, the date of planting and the name of the donor or other name specified by the donor.

The programme was launched this past October at Association Weekend. The Landscape Committee has prepared a booklet which contains all the details and copies will be distributed to members of the Ridley family in the coming months.

The Ridley College "Master Plan"

THE RIDLEY FUND

Happy 25th Birthday!

BY ROBERT E. STANLEY '47,
Director of Development

On September 19, 1990, at the York Club in Toronto, about 65 Ridley volunteers (board members, group captains, class agents, associate class agents, and grade agents) gathered to kick off the 25th Ridley Fund Campaign.

This annual giving programme, is one of the oldest of its kind among independent schools in Canada. We can proudly claim that the Ridley Fund raises more unrestricted monies than any similar campaign in the country. Last year, $357,290 was donated by 1,831 members of the Ridley family to the annual giving campaign. The history of the Ridley Fund and the record number of donations and dollars last year speaks volumes about the commitment of the men and women associated with Ridley College.

The Ridley College Foundation Fund and the Ridley College Scholarship Fund Inc., in the United States, were established during the 1950's, but it was not until the 1965-1966 year that these two funds, under the leadership of Tom Jarvis '37 and Graham Ness '37, chairmen of the Ridley College Foundation Fund and the Ridley College Scholarship Foundation Inc., respectively, decided to undertake an annual giving programme by means of telethons and written solicitations to all members of the Ridley community. During this year, using class secretaries as canvassers, the campaign sent out two mailings and held a telethon in Toronto. With a target of $20,000, 272 donors gave $16,730.

During the 1966-1967 campaign, two important changes evolved: The Ridley College Old Boys' Association decided to drop its annual membership fee, which at that time was $10, in lieu of an annual giving programme to encompass all old boys and parents of the school. The second and more important change in this year was the appointment of

Sam Heaman '39 as the secretary of the Ridley College Old Boys' Association and the Ridley College Foundation. That Sam was the right man for the job was quickly evidenced as the fund topped the $100,000 mark in 1970. Unfortunately, with the launching of the Programme for Excellence Campaign, the Ridley Fund, as it came to be called, was suspended for the 1971-1972 year and, when it was reactivated the following year, only $11,300 was raised.

During the next decade and a half, Sam Heaman built a strong network of canvassers, group captains, class agents, and associate class agents, which today number 200 plus volunteers. Sam also held regional branch telethons as well as the annual Toronto telethon, but it gradually became evident that all Ridleians in North America could be reached as easily from Toronto as from numerous branch locations; hence, the Ridley Fund now holds two telethons annually in Toronto: one in November, and one in late March or early April.

By the 1979-1980 campaign, Sam had nursed the Ridley Fund back to $140,000 from 1,500 donors and, upon his retirement in 1986, the Fund raised $232,770 from 1,776 donors. During the 2nd Century Campaign, the Ridley Fund was wisely not suspended, and its fortunes rose with the success of the campaign to last year's annual giving record. (See paragraph two above.)

A new wrinkle that has helped the Ridley Fund to new heights is the introduction, during the 2nd Century Campaign, of reunion-year giving. Each reunion year adopts a special project, (i.e., a bursary, planting a tree grove, signage on school buildings, etc.) which it undertakes to fund during its reunion year. This programme has introduced an element of competition into the annual fund between different graduating classes, with some groups raising upwards of $50,000, during their reunion year. During the 2nd Century Campaign, reunion-year giving totalled well over $600,000. It is hoped in the future that reunion-year giving will continue to grow, become more competitive between graduating classes and eventually provide 60% of the annual giving to the school.

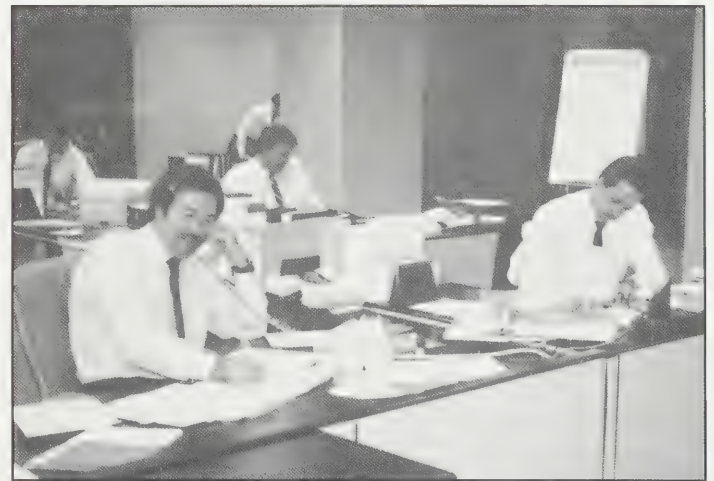

James Scandrett '39 accepts the Sam Heaman '39 Trophy, for best participation by a class during the 1988-89 fund year, from Sam.

The Ridley Fund

A father-son telethon team! Peter '44 and Peter '75 Gooderham assist the fund for their respective years.

Today, the annual giving programme supports all aspects of school life, with the current student body being the most immediate beneficiary. The Ridley Fund provides 3.6% of the school's operating budget. We hope, by the year 2000, to raise this figure to 10%. To do this, we must increase the participation rate, which now stands at 33% of the Ridley family. We would like to achieve a 50% participation rate - you can help us.... (RT)

Jim Gibson '75, Mike Hazell '73, Brian Iggulden '67 and Bill Hutton '76 help raise funds for the school from their classmates.

Do You Know What Planned Giving Is?

BY ROBERT E. STANLEY,
Director of Development

With the ever increasing number of 'not for profit organizations' entering the field of annual and capital giving campaigns, more and more schools and other charitable institutions are initiating planned giving programmes. Over 90% of fund raising campaigns carried on by Canadian charities are targeted at the private sector discretionary, disposable income. Asset wealth in the private sector has been all but ignored by charitable organizations in Canada to date. Interestingly, the vast majority of wealth in the private sector is in assets and not in discretionary, disposable income.

What Is Planned Giving? It is a long range approach to supporting Ridley College or any other institution of your choice. Donors may choose to include Ridley College by a bequest in their will, make Ridley a beneficiary of an insurance policy, or transfer the ownership of a policy to the school. Individuals may wish to establish a charitable annuity or an endowment fund to support a particular, favourite project at the school.

Planned giving can be both emotionally and materially fulfilling for an individual. A commitment such as a bequest or an insurance policy can strengthen the bond between the school and the individual and, in many instances, it will enhance annual giving. It is emotionally satisfying to support an institution which we believe in, and we all share a desire to leave something in this world that will grow - what better vehicle than a planned gift? Such gifts can provide significant tax benefits to the donor while at the same time maintaining financial security for the individual and their families. It also allows an individual to make a significantly larger gift than might otherwise be possible.

A planned gift offers Ridley a measure of financial security in meeting an uncertain future. It allows the school to undertake long term projects such as academic chairs, scholarships, etc. Such gifts establish a life-long relationship between the school and donors. It provides the school with an opportunity to recognize the generosity of its supporters by the naming of academic chairs, bursaries, scholarships and buildings.

Bequests are the most common type of planned gifts and can take several forms: cash, securities, and bequests can be given directly to the school in a will or as a remaining interest when one's spouse is deceased.

Insurance policies are probably the next most common type of planned gift and can take two forms. The donor can make Ridley the beneficiary of a policy or the donor can assign the policy, irrevocably, to Ridley. These gifts can be established as endowment funds for a favourite activity or as memorial funds in memory of a loved one. Another form of bequest that is growing in popularity is the gift annuity in which an individual takes out an annuity with the residue of the agreement going to the school upon the death of the annuitant.

With the exception of annuities and life insurance policies, bequests and endowment funds held by Ridley are pooled for investment purposes. An investment committee for the Board of Governors supervises the management of these monies by professional consultants. In order to maintain the purchasing power of the endowment income, the general investment policy is to maximize income only within the constraints of adequately protecting capital. All pooled funds share in both capital growth and annual income from earned interest. All monies are held by the Ridley College Foundation, which determines annually the distribution of income to the school.

In the next issue of Tiger we will present some examples of creative and rewarding planned giving programmes. (RT)

Kenyon Lett House

The Headmaster's New Residence

BY ANDREW WHITELEY,
Director of Finance and Operations

The genesis of the idea for Kenyon Lett House began with our former Headmaster, Jere Packard. While the Headmaster's House was not up to the standards of housemasters' houses, his main concern was for the living conditions of the girls in Gooderham House. In a sense, the School was a victim of its own success in co-education. The School's wish not to turn away qualified girl borders, resulted in over crowding in the Gooderham House residences. During Mr. Packard's last year at the School, the Property Committee and Board of Governors reached the decision to upgrade the standard of accommodation in the current Headmaster's House and make it available to the Housemaster of Gooderham House West. The former internal apartment of Gooderham House West, above the house library, would then be converted to student accommodations to alleviate some of the over crowding in the house.

All of this left the tenants of Gooderham House in good stead, but put the School in the awkward position of having employed a new Headmaster and not having a place for him to live. When Doug Campbell arrived, he moved into the upgraded Gooderham House Housemaster's accommodation on an interim basis. Several Governors suggested that the time was right for the School to build a new Headmaster's House.

At this time, the Walker family came forward and offered to provide a major portion of the funding to construct the new house. At the same time, Dr. Patrick F. Lett had a similar proposal and wished to name the house in memory of his grandfather, Kenyon Lett. The Lett family is one of the oldest Ridley families. Kenyon Lett entered Ridley in 1891 and graduated in 1896. During the 1920's, his two sons, Stephen and Terence, entered the School and in turn their sons attended Ridley, David '59, a cousin of Tristram '66 and Patrick '67.

The School then found itself in the enviable position of having more than one donor and more than enough money for the project. Happily, the Walker family agreed to top up the Hamilton Chair Endowment Fund in the 2nd Century Campaign and to create the Walker Maintenance Fund Endowment.

It has been the intent of the Governors of the School that the creation of this new home not be funded from tuition fees and that no operating expenses bear any burden of the project. This has been accomplished in the following way:

Disbursements		Funding
Construction Costs	$550,000	Lett Donation	$450,000
Contingencies	35,000	Sale of 2 off-campus houses	200,000
Landscaping	32,500	4 Governors' Donations	100,000
Consulting Fees and Disbursements	76,000
Site Services	10,000
Furniture and Fixtures	46,500
Total Project Cost	$750,000	Total Funding	$750,000

The project is on time and on budget, and the Headmaster has moved into the new house. Likewise, the Gooderham West Housemaster, Karen Close and her husband, Tom, have moved into the new Gooderham Housemaster's Residence. Our Property Manager, Les Andrew, is making plans to complete the renovations to the former Gooderham House apartment which will accommodate 12 girls. A fire stairwell, required under building code regulations, is complete and will be connected to these new rooms.

The home has ample living space for current and future Headmasters' families, includes guest accommodation space, and a provision for a future nanny's room. The focal point of the house is a two-story foyer complete with spiral staircase and chandelier and will be a very gracious entertaining space for alumni and parents, a facility which the Headmaster has lacked in the past. We hope that many of you will have an opportunity to view the home, once the Campbells have unpacked their moving cases. (RT)

Ridley College Association President's Report

BY DAVID A. MACLACHLAN '45,
Past President, Ridley College Association

The Annual Meeting of the Ridley College Association was held on October 20th in the Mandeville Theatre. A nominating committee of the Ridley Association Executive proposed a slate of candidates representing a cross section of Ridley alumni, faculty, prefects and parents to serve for the 1990 - 1991 year. The Executive Committee was unanimously elected and under the leadership of Allan Kling '72 held their first meeting in early November.

Following the Annual Meeting, the Association presented the School with an Honour Roll of names of masters and staff of Ridley who served the school for 25 years or more. Of the 49 names recorded 24 are still living and of this total 20 returned to receive a plaque and join the alumni attending the Reunion Weekend for a reception and lunch.

Other highlights of the year included:

- The presentation of the 1990 Association Volunteer Award to Hugh Watson '40.

- The annual Toronto Dinner, this year held at Metro Toronto Board of Trade Club on April 11th.

- The second annual Association Golf Tournament was played at Chinguacousy Country Club. Participation increased by 50% which speaks well for the future of this annual event.

- A squash tournament was initiated with 20 participants enjoying two matches each plus an exhibition by world-class player guests, followed by an excellent barbecue dinner.

- The many successful events of the Niagara Peninsula, Toronto and London Branches of the Women's Guild.

As my term ends as President of the Ridley College Association, I would like to thank the members of the Executive Committee who together with all old girls, old boys, parents and friends of Ridley contributed so much to the success of the year. Our newly-elected President Allan Kling was a source of constant support.

Don Lawson, Jim Gibson, John Webster and Bill Somerville of the Class of '75 prepare to tee-off at Chinguacousy Country Club in Inglewood, Ont. at the 2nd Annual Alumni Golf Tournament. John Webster scored a winning 76 to capture the low gross award.

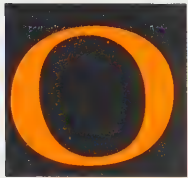

Cro Taylor '40 introduced the Volunteer Award winner for 1989-1990, Hugh Watson '40, at Association Weekend on October 20th. Hugh's 50 years of volunteer service for the school in a number of capacities makes him a worthy recipient.

Ridley College Association Long-Service Awards

BY BRIAN A. IGGULDEN '67,
Executive Secretary, Ridley College Association

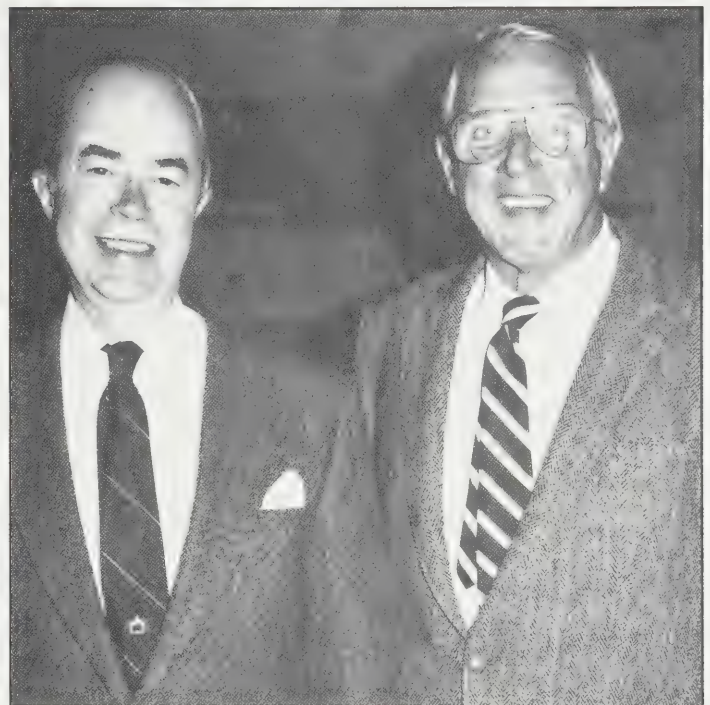

n Saturday, October 20th, faculty and staff who have served the School for 25 years or more were honoured in the Mandeville Theatre.

ASSOCIATION BRANCH MEETINGS

Grand Valley, Ontario

On Wednesday, October 3rd Tom Hodgins '45 organized the annual Grand Valley Branch Meeting of the Ridley College Association. This year the reception was held at Cro Taylor's '40 picturesque Elora Mill in Elora, Ontario. During the evening Emily and Greg Alexanian presented the Headmaster, Douglas Campbell with a Indo-Persian white wall rug with a Ridley crest woven into the centre. The Alexanians had the rug made in India in commemoration of the school's centennial.

On behalf of nearly 30 people who attended this very pleasant gathering, we want to thank Tom Hodgins and Cro Taylor for organizing and hosting the evening.

Bermuda

On Tuesday, November 6th Jim and Debbie Butterfield hosted the annual Bermuda Branch Reception at their lovely home, "Cove Cottage", overlooking Hamilton Harbour. Nearly 70 members of the Ridley/Bermuda community attended this most enjoyable evening.

Jim was the Master of Ceremonies and welcomed the Ridley visitors, Doug and Donna Campbell and Bob and Pat Stanley. Jim, on behalf of Bermudians, presented the Headmaster with a cheque for approximately $4,000 U.S. for the Bermuda Scholarship.

The Headmaster spoke briefly and showed a new slide presentation on Ridley that has recently been put together by Don Rickers of the Admissions Department.

On behalf of all of us who had the pleasure of attending this most-successful-ever Bermuda gathering, many thanks to Jim and Debbie for their warm hospitality.

Halifax, Nova Scotia & St. John's, Newfoundland

The Campbell's and the Stanley's visited Halifax for a branch reception at the Halifax Sheraton on Thursday, November 15th. Many thanks to Gord Powell '62 who organized the evening and turned out the largest crowd of Haligonians we have had in recent years.

The following evening the Newfoundland branch held its annual dinner in St. John's. This delightful affair was organized by Geoff Tooton '70. The dinner was attended by 30 people, alumni, parents and prospective parents.

On both evenings the Headmaster spoke about the school and showed the slide presentation mentioned above. On both occasions the Headmaster expressed his appreciation for the warm welcome he and his wife Donna had received.

London, Ontario

On Thursday, November 22nd Janet Lewis, the Assistant Headmaster, lead a Ridley delegation to the annual Ridley reception in London at the Hunt and Country Club.

Over 60 people welcomed Janet including a strong contingent of students from the University of Western Ontario.

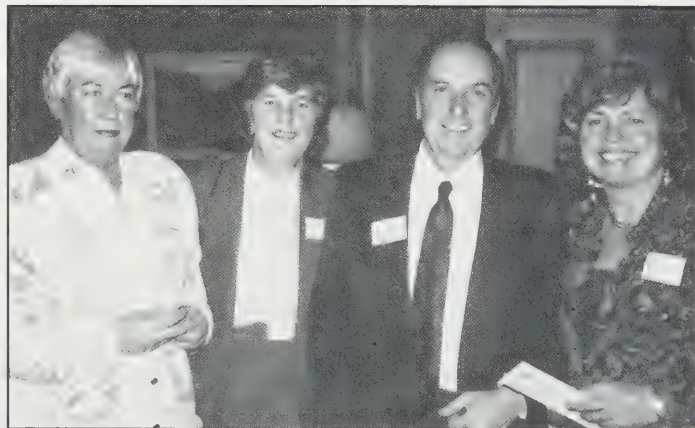

We want to thank Charlie Ross '57, his wife Seanna and their son Dave for organizing, hosting and turning out such a large number of Londoners for this event.

Doug and Donna Campbell were presented with a beautiful hand-knotted Indian rug by Linda '85 and Greg '84 Alexanian.

Geoff Tooton '70, Branch Chairman, joins Donna Campbell for dinner, which was traditional Newfoundland fare.

In London, Jean Rankin, Sandy and Bill Robertson join the hostess, Seanna Ross at the London Hunt and Country Club.

Caldwell, Binns, Jernigan, and Khan thrill alumni squash players.

A fabulous night organized by Bill Sears '58 and David Jarvis '70 brought Ridley alumni squash players together at the Oxford Club in Toronto. Approximately 20 players participated in a handi-cap tournament won by "Ted" Nixon '74. The field included several notable players - Clive Caldwell '71, Victor Harding '66, John Frederick '71 and Derek Finkle '86 among them.

After sharing some good squash and friendly Ridley camaraderie, we were treated to a world-class doubles match featuring Todd Binns (#1 in the world doubles rankings), Clive Caldwell (#4), Kenton Jernigan (#6), and Aziz Khan (#8).

All agreed it was a complete success and must be repeated. Look for details in a future Ridley Tiger!
